Some photometers measure light by counting individual photons rather than incoming flux. The operating principles are the same but the results are given in units such as photons/cm² or photons·cm⁻²·sr⁻¹ rather than W/cm² or W·cm⁻²·sr⁻¹. Due to their individual photon counting nature, these instruments are limited to observations where the irradiance is low.

Quote HSE " Success in managing major Hazards is not measured by the Occupational Health and Safety Statistics but by measuring the performance of critical systems used to control risks to ensure they are operating as intended.. This statement is a very powerful statement and i want to stand on the premise that it should form the basis of assessing and formulating regulation regimes.
